Productivity Savings Can Have a Significant Impact on Your Profitability

At DGI Supply, we understand that the right solutions—the right products and the right services—make you more productive and more profitable.

All four P’s should be considered:

- Price
- Product Quality
- Procurement Solutions
- Productivity Savings

The Productivity Improvement Process

1. Survey selected area(s)
2. Recommend process improvements and tooling assortment upgrades
3. Perform sample tests to confirm and establish savings
4. Present results based on recommendations and sample tests
5. Commitment to implementation schedule
6. Implement recommendations!

By focusing on productivity savings, DGI Supply won two American Eagle awards from the Industrial Supply Association and has generated millions of dollars in documented customer savings!

We Start With Customer Needs

reduce consumption
• 100% accountability on issuance of products
• Around-the-clock access to products, with no increase in inventory or labor
• Reducing and eliminating access to product inventory

Reduce Inventory Carrying Cost
• Dispensing existing customer owned inventory prior to utilizing newly purchased inventory
• Basing inventory levels on actual product demand
• Enforcing usage of reground and reconditioned tools, before allowing access to new tools

Control Product Access
• Managing what products employees access
• Dispensing correct package quantity eliminating waste
• Improving process integrity, by insuring the correct tool for the job

Establish Limits
• Setting product consumption limits by employee, shift, or job
• Setting budget limits by employee, shift, or job

Productivity Improvement
• Targeting the top 20 expense items for process optimization and unit price reduction
• Coordinating process improvements with manufacturer’s technical representatives
• Facilitating product rationalization and standardization
